1. I consulted with Emmett Echols, [REDACTED] about our supergrade exercise. I believe that we will have ready within a week the entire proposal, which will recommend a supergrade ceiling of [REDACTED] people. I was assured that this will still, on a percentage basis, put us below other agencies in the international field. I also reviewed with these same people a scientific pay scale and approved in principle of sending this forward with the supergrade proposal to Pat Carter.

2. Otto Guthe telephoned to say that he had been advised by some authoritative source that the Washington Auditorium would be demolished sometime soon after the first of November, 1962. In view of the fact that our Map Library has for some time been housed there, it behooves us to look into this and to try to make some definite plans about where this activity will be moved.
